DETAILED ACTION

Specification

Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

The abstract of the disclosure is objected to because it includes improper language, namely "adapted to" and "comprises" in the body of the abstract. Correction is required. See MPEP § 608.01(b).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Buselmeier (3,826,257). Buselmeier discloses a prosthetic shunt or graft device that may be used in hemodialysis to remove blood from and return blood to a patient after being treated by a dialysis machine. The device is a tubular body having an inlet and outlet at each end (17'), and an intermediate segment (33) that is tapered and therefore has a reduced inner diameter. The tapering results in a more narrow end, which is seen to be equivalent to applicant's gradually diminishing segment, and has a larger diameter end which is seen to be equivalent to applicant's gradually expanded segment. See Figure 10.

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Stanish (6,585,762). Stanish discloses an arteriovenous graft. The graft (210/310) has a tubular body having an inlet and outlet at each end, and an intermediate segment (223+240+233 or 323+340+333) that is tapered and therefore has a reduced inner diameter. The tapering results in a more narrow end (223 or 233/323 or 333), which is seen to be equivalent to applicant's gradually diminishing segment, and has a larger diameter section (240/340) which is seen to be equivalent to applicant's gradually expanded segment.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 4 & 5 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims. The subject matter that was not found is the intermediate portion comprising an abrupt crimped segment in combination with the other elements (or steps) in the claims.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Zarate (5,849,036), Nunez et al. (5,800,514), Gelman (6,146,416), Dossa (6,338,724), Yang et al. (6,371,981), & Harris et al. (6,589,278) all discloses similar vascular grafts that have segments with variable diameters.
